EISENHOWER LAYS CORNERSTONE

Edward P. Morgan, at 7:00 P.M. over WMAL (Washington) and ABC Network:

MORGAN: "Normally the most security conscious of government agencies, the CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY relaxed restrictions today long enough to let reporters and selected members of the public view its unfinished 46 million-dollar headquarters, eight miles from the capital in the Virginia countryside.

"President Eisenhower laid the cornerstone, praised the excellence of CIA's operatives. Their exact number and even CIA's budget are unknown, but the new building is roughly half the size of the Pentagon."
